

ACT provides local tuition in the Middle East

Following the success of the tuition provided for the Certificate in International Cash Management qualification in Dubai, the ACT has appointed Phoenix Financial Training as the local tuition provider for the rest of the AMCT Stage 2 and Stage 3 papers. Phoenix Financial Training, led by David Thomasson, ex-head of the largest regional FTC Kaplan centre in the UK, provides tuition for ACCA, ICAEW, CFAB and CIA, and has an excellent reputation for bringing the highest standards of student and client care, quality of training, material and consequent pass rates to the Gulf region.

Thomasson said: "We are delighted to be working to support the development of the ACT qualification in the Gulf. We firmly believe that the continued, rapid economic growth of the region requires the development of strong financial and treasury skills and the expertise and integrity of the ACT's qualifications will be vital to this process."

Phoenix will be providing tuition and revision courses for the Certificate in International Treasury Management for the October 2010 examinations and will add further certificates in due course.

ACT Middle East is LinkedIn

The ACT Middle East is now managing its own group on the professional networking platform LinkedIn, at <http://tiny.cc/tw6qc>. All members of the ACTME network are encouraged to join and participate on the site as ACTME becomes wider and deeper. ACTME invites those with a broad interest in corporate treasury management to join both the ACTME network and the LinkedIn group to keep up to date with events and discussions. In time, this should become a leading forum for discussing and debating treasury management issues in the Middle East and for those doing business in and with the Middle East. The ACTME website www.treasurers.org/actmiddleeast is a further source of information on ACTME, the ACT and the full range of ACT education, training and events in the Middle East and globally.
