

RNLI Council and Committee Recruitment Open

The RNLI has a well-established and very effective governance structure. A critical part of this is our RNLI Council and Committees, both governing volunteer groups from which our Trustees are often drawn.

The Council represent the skills and industry sectors that the RNLI works with; it is also a key advisory body to both our Trustees and the Executive, who draw on the talent in the Council to help develop their thinking, problem solving and also represent the RNLI to the wider community as important ambassadors for our lifesaving cause.

Our Committees are key advisory bodies to the Board. Our Trustees draw on the talent of our Committee members to undertake detailed supervision of particular aspects of RNLI business.

We are now seeking new people who can bring their industry experience, expertise and knowledge to join these important groups and would welcome applications from individuals who have the right skills and time, to be able to take on these broad but very interesting volunteer roles.

Further information about these roles and how to apply can be found by following the links below or by contacting volunteering@rnli.org.uk. The closing date for applications is Sunday 10th February.
